MOVED, BUT LEFT GARBAGE, AND WAS FINED HEAVILY

This morning in Burgess Dunlap's court, Andy Holochock was ordered to pay a fine of $6.00 or serve thirty days in the county jail. He paid the fine. The charge against Andy was that of moving from one place to another and failing or refusing to clean up his garbage.

The information was made by health officer Clendennon, and a clear case was presented, the agents for the premises being present to testify that Andy had left garbage around the premises that cost $3.00 to remove.

Burgess Dunlap in administering the sentence took occasion to remark that entirely too many people leave premises without cleaning up their garbage. He said other people are supposed to clean it up, but it was evident that when such cases come before him, the parties responsible for such business will suffer pretty severely.

Many landlords and agents have had to complain to the Health Board and have the health officer serve a legal warrant before the premises would be cleaned. This practice is not all among the foreign people, either, according to the agents who rent properties.

Health Officer Clendennon also made information against one Tony Frazetta of Shawnee street. Tony keeps a cow and a sty. He has been notified that pigs and cattle could not be kept in the borough, but he failed to obey the mandate. He was released on promise that before sundown the cows and pigs would be removed far back into the country among the owls and whipperwills.

Patriotic Drill by America Sons

The Military company of the Patriotic Order Sons of America will give a silent Manual drill at the Star theatre Friday evening. This will be well worth seeing as the drill is entirely to music, not a word being spoken. Inasmuch as this is one of our local organizations and the members composing the company are well known, the boys should have a good audience. It is hoped that the town can soon boast of a full military company which will be a great help in boosting Monessen. Give the boys a good audience and help this good work along.

Was Arrested for Jumping Bail

Unnontown, Pa., April 29—Frank C. Newcomer, formerly a member of the Fayette county bar, was arrested near Washington, Pa., last night, on a charge of absconding from bail in the sum of $300, furnished here some time ago when Newcomer was arrested on a serious charge preferred by his wife and her father, Rev. J. T. Eastburn.

Constable J. R. Woods arrested Newcomer after following him from Charleroi in an automobile. Newcomer was released late last night in $1,500 bail, following the institution here of habeas corpus procedings.

Newcomer stated he had been in Reno, Nev., where he had established a residence preparatory to instituting divorce proceedings against his wife. Mrs. Newcomer in her suit, alleges her husband was intimate with a Uniontown girl.

Gocycles Ready for Boys

Any boy or girl or any person turning in at the Independent office $1.50 in subscriptions and 25 cents additional will receive a gocycle. This may be done in three ways: Either by getting three two month subscriptions at 25 cents a month or two three month subscriptions or one six month subscription. This requires very little effort on the part of the boy and in return it gives him an opportunity to ride the latest machine, the gocycle. For amusement and recreation the gocycle is far ahead of anything on the market. This is not alone for newsboys, but any boy in town or any person meeting the above conditions can get a gocycle.

FRIDAY, MAY 21, IS DATE SET FOR ELDORA PARK OPENING

Friday, May 21 is the day that has been selected as the opening date of Eldora park for the season of 1915. In preparing for this date, Manager Tom P. Sloan and Assitant Manager Roy S. Sharpnack, the same park officials who have conducted the popular amusement place last year, are having the park buildings renovated and everything put in shape for an anticipated successful season. The last two seasons were good ones.

Nothing of a special nature has yet been booked for the opening date, but three school picnics have been booked already for the week that is to follow.

The first school picnic of the season will be that of the Donora schools on Saturday, May 22, the day after the opening of the park. Next will come the Charleroi school picnic on Wednesday, May 26, this to be followed the next day by the Monongahela school picnic.

In booking the school picnics of these three towns, an unusual difficulty was struck by Assistant Manager Sharpnack. All three wanted the same date which was May 27. Monongahela, having presented the request first retained the date, Charleroi agreeing to take May 26 and Donora sliding back to Saturday, May 23. The Monessen school authorities have been in touch with Assistant Manager Sharpnack in regard to a date, and only details remain to be arranged before a date will be selected.

A cinder track is being put in good shape for the school picnics and other outings of this season at Eldora. Other innovations are to be made before the season opens.

STREET RAILWAY STOCK SELLING VERY RAPIDLY

W. P. Kirk and James K. Boyd are out soliciting stock takers for the Hill Top Street Railways company. They are meeting with unusual success and encouragement and last evening more than $10,000 worth of stock had been subscribed for among local business men and citizens. The promoting of this line is to be purely a local proposition and Monessen people will be given the first opportunity to take up the stock. As soon as enough has been subscribed, a charter will be applied for and the company organized and it is hoped that work of actual construction will be started before long. The men who have worked hard and long at this project feel justly proud of the way the enterprise is being received by the public at large. Any person wanting to subscribe for stock is welcome to do so, as the ground floor proposition is open to one and all alike.

This line is planned to open up a territory back of town yet undeveloped and to afford home sites for the thousands of workmen in our mills at very nominal prices. Lots can be had along this proposed line at prices that any person can afford to pay. It is a small matter then to get a house built and thus stop the rent leak of the wage earner. The new line will make a complete circle around the town and will carry passengers at the nominal rate of fare. Construction will start at Tenth and Donner and while the line may not be entirely completed the coming summer, cars will likely be running to the suburbs back of McMahan borough by fall.

The committee is composed of J. K. Boyd, A. N. Hood, W. P. Kirk, E. H. Wolf, E. C. Sattley, G. F. Wright, H. W. Day and Jake Meyers.

PAPER CANS ARE NOW USED FOR RAW GARBAGE

It would be a good idea for the Board of Trade to remove the waste paper receptacles at the street corners. These cans are being used for garbage cans and with the coming of warm weather they are liable to work more harm than good. This morning as a pedestrian was coming past a hotel, a man was seen to walk out of the bar and empty raw garbage in the can and walk back in. He was an attendant at the hotel. This is only one of the many illustrations used to show that people who know better use these waste paper receptacles for garbage. Some occupants of apartment houses have been seen to walk down to a can and deposit garbage and walk back up street.

It happened only a day or two ago. The party who does it, however, should remember that there is always someone somewhere sees the act. It is hoped that the Board of Health and the Board of Trade will discuss the matter and either remove the cans or print some kind of a notice to tack over the cans fixing a penalty for using them for anything other than garbage.

Not for Charity Alone

"Space and copies of his paper go to make up the newspaper man's stock in trade," says the Fourth Estate in an editorialy entitled"Objects of Charity." "These two are all that he has to offer for sale to the public, and no one has yet given any sort of satisfactory reason why he should ever be asked by anyone to donate them.

"One thing newspaper people will never be able to understand is why any person will walk into a newspaper office and make himself or herself an object of charity and insist upon what they would disdain to ask for in any other shop or place of business in the town. The principal is the same in the newspaper office as in the dry goods store, the grocery, the drug store, and what a great many people need is to come to recognize it as the same and get off the newspaper charity list.

"Advertising space in the newspaper is for sale, not to give away. It has a certain intrinsic value in itself that makes it worth money. Copies of the newspaper are for sale, not to give away. If they are worth having, they are worth the exceedingly small price asked for them.

"The public, or at least a portion of it, has some very erroneous ideas about these matters, and it is but just to the newspaper folks that these ideas be corrected in accordance with the same business principles that prevail in all other business establishment.

"In the vast majority of cases, this generous charity on the part of newspapers is blissfully take: for granted, and the paper's liberality abused. That which is purely a favor is accepted as a matter of course, and what should be requests are coached as demands.

"When the courtesy has been performed there is rarely appreciation, and more often dissatisfaction—generally silence.

"The result in many towns and cities has been that a ban has been put upon all free publicity, no matter what its object—even upon the church notice. In those cities such favors as the press bestows are properly appreciated and valued."

The Stalwart Attraction

In southern California, Portland and other places, they're having a lovely racket over the posing of Miss Margaret Edwards, in the nude, as a statue of Truth, and a Mrs. M. S. puts a question that is is simply immense, to wit:

"I would like to ask if we have no other Truth on this planet than a nude woman."

Come to think about it, whenever they're getting up a representation of Truth, Justice, Beauty, Grace, Prosperity or any other good thing, they select a woman's figure, nude of thereabouts. There isn't any painter or sculptor but seems to think that art consists very largely in working in the female form divine and pretty well stripped. Heaven or Hades—it doesn't matter what the scene—has its lovely untrammeled female, as the central figure. The great exposition buildings at San Francisco are plastered with clothingless women representing most everything from holding a plow to straddling a rainbow.

Would you sell a book? Strip your heroine.

Would you put "Standing Room Only" in your theatre? A ballet that will shock the hardened police.

Would you show an exposition that breathes forth high art? Bronze, clay, marble, plaster of Paris, wooden, female forms divine, or devlish, but plenty of them.

And right now, too, when it is claimed the men hold all the rights.

Insolence of Law

The other day in a Chicago court room a girl fainted. She fainted when the judge ordered the young man before him—father of her child—to pay a fine of $550 or spend six months in the city prison.

Her father committed suicide when he learned of her condition. Her mother drove her out. She had trusted in the law to give her baby a name. The law satisfied itself with a money fine—then did the same that her mother did. Hampered by disgrace and a nursing babe, she is compelled to battle for a living. The man, uncontaminated is free to repeat, provided he has the $550. For this reason young mothers and their babies are frequently found asphixiated in hall bed rooms of cheap rooming houses. The laws—or the lack of the—it seems form too much of an invitation to promiscuous parenthood.

Philadelphia Voting on Debt Increase

Philadelpjhia, Pa., April 29—The citizens of Philadelphia are today casting their votes in a referendum election to determine whether the city debt shall be increased by $60,000,000 to provide the means for rapid transit. Provisions for a municipal loan of six millions to be applied toward increasing the transit facilities have been approved by the city government. For several years agitation has been going on, pointing out the needs of better transit facilities. The city is far behind the times in the matter of rapid transit. Many problems are met here that do not exist in other cities. It is expected by the advocates of the loan that the vote will be favorable, for a long campaign has been waged for a prompt solution of the transit problem.

SYNOPSIS.

Reginald Nelson, a young Englishman of high birth, comes to this country to win fame and fortune. On the steamer he meets Albert Townley, a minister, Mrs. Graham and her pretty daughter, Joy.

Reginald goes to Bronson, home of his three new acquaintances, where he learns that Joy's father is a leading lawyer, who is the mainstay of a corrupt political ring He gets a job.

The young Englishman enters the social life of Bronson. He falls in love with Joy, and later discovers that she is engaged to be married to Roland Gregory.

Allan Rutledge, another minister, and the Rev. Mr Townley confer on the evil moral and laboring conditions in Bronson. The reform element meets and decides to have Billy Sunday, the noted evangelist, aid in a "cleanup."

Editor Marchmount offers Reginald a position on his paper. The latter accepts, and later he performs a heroic act in stopping a dangerous runaway.

Nelson starts on his work on the Courier. He begins to investigate the suspicious death of Mae Mobray, a youthful worker in Roland Gregory's factory plant. The councilmen and saloon keepers oppose the coming of Billy Sunday.

A tabernacle is built for Billy Sunday, and Reginald, in the columns of the Courier, begins a spirited campaign in favor of the evangelist. Sunday holds his first meeting in Bronson.

Much to the anger of Mr. Graham and Bud McCrea, a councilman, Sunday's work proves effective as an attack on vice. "By the help of God we'll clean up Bronson," says Sunday.

On a Sunday afternoon the reformer makes a powerful attack on gambling and saloons and hypocrisy. He describes saloons as "breeders of lawlessness."

Joy finds it impossible to prevail on Roland Gregory, her fiance, to join the church. Mr. Rutledge gets hold of the "fatal ring" that poor little Mae Mobray wore at the time of her mysterious death.

CHAPTER XII.

A Mother's Broken Heart.

REGINALD entered the minister's house and apologized for his late visit. "I thought I would likely catch you at home at this time," he said in an apologetic tone, "and I wanted to see you alone."

"What has happened now?"

"I have learned some things today which make me feel that we must not think the millennium has come to Bronson yet," said the other, seating himself by the comfortable grate fire. "While a number of us were trying to serve God in Augsley last night the devil was busy in Bronson.

"It seems that every evil resort in Bronson has redoubled its efforts since the close of the tabernacle meetings," continued Reginald, gazing into the fire. "While we had Mr. Sunday with us I understand that the saloons and gambling dens and the other resorts were almost deserted. Many of the fellows who patronized these places were converted, and there is a determined effort being made to win the poor young converts back to the old life."

Allan Rutledge looked grave. "I had been planning an attack on the social institutions of iniquity, but I did not think we would need to be in a hurry."

"That is just why I called tonight," said Reginald hastily. "I knew that you were planning to give a good deal of your time to evangelistic work in neighboring towns for a month or two. Excuse me for saying it, but I think it is a mistake. The iron is hot in Bronson now. Let us strike at once."

"What do you mean?" asked the minister, surprised to see the earnestness of the newspaper reporter.

"Well," began Reginald, "last night some of the weaker converts were lured into a haunt of vice, filled with liquor and disgraced. One of them happened to be a young man from a respectable family, and in making his way home he got into the wrong house and awoke the neighborhood. That is how I happened to hear about it. The family came to the Courier office in awful distress, and they want us to say nothing about it."

"It is very plain, isn't it," said the minister, with a touch of bitterness in his voice, "that the devil is not dead, nor has he turned Christian?"

"Mr. Marchmount was at first going to suppress the matter, but as he thought it over he felt assured that he would publish it if the offense had been committed by some one of no social standing, and he decided to treat this case exactly as he would any other. There is going to be quite a write-up in tomorrow's paper about the affair. I am sorry. It seems to show that Mr. Sun[illegible]'s [illegible]k was very superficial, but I [illegible] it was real." The young man spoke the words "I know" with emphasis.

Allan Rutledge sat in silence, and the two men gazed into the glowing fire.

"I have been roused to action by the scorn of the enemy," said Reginald after a long pause. "I met Mr. McCrea this afternoon, and he leered in my face and asked me if I was going to tell all about the actions of some of Billy's converts."

"Did he dare to do that?" asked Allan Rutledge incredulously.

"He made a mistake when he roused me as he did," responded the reporter. "I told him right then that I was convinced that even Gabriel himself would need fumigating if he associated with some of the people of Bronson before he could return to heaven."

The minister laughed and said, "You seem to be getting the Sundayesque style."

"I admit I was angry with McCrea," said the young man, "but seriously, Dr. Rutledge, unless we can do something to heal these open sores in our social life a large number of these young converts will surely backslide. Let us begin action at once for the cleaning up of Bronson."

"I have been regretting very much that our council did not come under the Sunday influence more," said the minister. "If only the mayor and a majority of the council had been converted we could have ousted these evil places in a week. That is what has happened in a number of Iowa towns after Mr. Sunday's meetings."

"McCrea knew that, and he used all his power with the city administration to keep them away from the tabernacle."

"Our present city administration represented very well the old Bronson, but they misrepresent the new Bronson," said Allan Rutledge

"But the trouble is," persisted Reginald, "that the old administration keep in power until next election, and I fear that by that time our newly recruited forces of righteousness will be sadly weakened by desertions unless we can arouse strong public sentiment against these open and protected evils. We must begin a fight for civic decency at once."

"What do you propose?" asked the minister, surprised to see the grasp of the situation shown by the young man.

"I was reading in my Bible the other day," began the other, "and I turned to the book of Nehemiah. I like Nehemiah, someway. He seems so modern and practical to me. When he came to Jerusalem to assist the people in rebuilding the ruined city the first thing he did was to arise by night and make a night circuit of the city. You remember the incident?"

Men High Up Charged With Conspiracy

Chicago, Ill., April 29—Eight prominent men of the middle west, three of whom are charged with conspiracy and five of whom are charged with conspiracy and using the mails to defraud, will be given a hearing in the U. S. District Court tomorrow, in the sensational Colorado irrigation expose. The indictments were returned on April 10 in the federal court here, charging the men with misuse of the mails in the sale of securities amounting to over $5,000,000.

The men involved are: William Iliff of Denver, Charles F. Tew of Greeley, Colo., and Samuel H. Shields, Denver, alleged financiers of the Greeley-Poudre Irigation District; John Farson, Jr., and William Farson of Chicago, Roy Thompson of Chicago, George H. Osborne of Cheyenne, Wyoming and Harry E. Parrott of Chicago.

Alleged failure to warn prospective bond purchasers of water litigation between Colorado and Wyoming resulted in the indictment of the promoters by the federal grand jury, according to the post office inspectors. The investigation into the affairs of the irrigation company began last December. The charge is that the bonds were sold on the representation that the project was completed and that early profits were expected. That the work was not finished when this claim was made is one of the charges against the promoters.

The Greely-Poudre project comprises about 125,000 acres in Northern Colorado. In order to provide water for the irrigation of the tract the company projected a tunnel from the big Laramie river. This tunnel if constructed, would divert water not available for irrigation in Wyoming, and the state of Wyoming brought suit against the state of Colorado to prevent this. According to the federal officials, the company advertised that they had abundance of water, failing to mention the suit which involved the source of supply.

LEGISLATION FOR ROAD WORK

Harrisburg, Pa., April 29—Two pieces of legislation have been introduced by Senator W. C. Sproul at the request of Highway Commissioner Robert J. Cunningham, which are designed to improve the department. Under one of these proposed acts, Mr. Cunningham could reorganize his working forces and considerably lessen the cost.

The law in force now was drawn in the belief that the $50,000,000 bond issue proposed two years ago would be approved. The people decided the bonds were not necessary and such an elaborate organization is needless. Now the commissioner must appoint 50 district superintendents. He would change this to "may" appoint and if he finds it too many, he can appoint a fewer number. This same idea is carried out as to other places and salaries.

After the passage of the bill the commissioner can reduce or enlarge his force as conditions warrant. He also can fix the salaries at amounts he considers adequate. The legislation has the approval of Gov. Martin G. Brumbaugh. Both bills will be on final passage Monday.

Another bill establishes the width of sidewalks in townships, fixing them as follows:

On highways 30 feet, sidewalks must be three feet; highways 33 feet, sidewalks four and one half feet, highways 40 feet, sidewalks five feet; highways 50 feet, sidewalks 12 feet; highways 60 feet, sidewalks, 15 feet; highways 70 feet, sidewalks 20 feet.
